Embracing the Future with Poise for 30 Years

The Old Dominion Cotillion marked its 30th Anniversary on July 10 by celebrating the debut of six young women in our community. Since its inception, the Old Dominion Cotillion has focused on preparing young ladies for adulthood with grace, poise and a sense of social responsibility. The program culminates with a magical ball held at Westfields Marriott in Chantilly, which gives young ladies the opportunity to replace blue jeans with an elegant gown and truly celebrates a young woman's transition to a member of society.

"The Board of Governors is pleased to announce the debut of the following lovely young ladies: Miss Lauren Elizabeth Dorfman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Dorfman of Reston; Miss Farrah Brennan Greeves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Greeves of Vienna; Miss Skye Sunghwi Ilies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Jones of Vienna; Miss Kathryn Francis Maher, daughter of Mr. Paul Maher of Burke and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cox of Springfield; Miss Ainsley Lauren McCabe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicklas McCabe of Arlington; and Miss Emma Catherine Wetmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Wetmore of Ashburn..

The Debutantes, dressed in white Cinderella-like ball gowns, were presented by their fathers. After the formal presentation, the Debutantes, their escorts and guests danced the night away to music by Rendezvous.

This year's Assembly also included two Future Debutantes, three Post Debutante and two Post-Post Debutantes, along with active alumni from classes dating back to 1992.

In addition to learning social graces, the girls also participate in many activities throughout the Social Season. Due to the world-wide pandemic, the Social Season was extended from September 2019 to July 2021, and included virtual events like stress management and financial awareness, as well as holiday caroling to benefit the Harmony at Chantilly senior residents in Herndon.

The Old Dominion Cotillion is a women's organization that was established in 1991. Young women are educated in the social graces through enrichment, social and philanthropic activities. ODC's social development activities include social graces, dress code and conversation for all occasions, netiquette, sports etiquette, car maintenance, interview skills, manners in public places and much more. Dance lessons and seminars in stationery and dinner etiquette always round out the program. In addition to enrichment activities, the young women and their families enjoy numerous social events throughout the year.

The ODC program is open to all girls in grades seven through twelve. Membership is now open for the 2021-2022 Social Season, which begins in September with the Invitational Tea and concludes with the 31st Anniversary Debutante Ball in July 2021. If interested in learning more about ODC or to be placed on the invitation list for the Invitational Tea, contact Lynn Williams, ODC Director, at williamslynnnd@gmail.com.

Superintendent Scott Brabrand Announces He is Leaving FCPS | FCSB Begins Search Process

Dr. Scott Brabrand announced on a YouTube video released Thursday, July 15, 2021, that he is leaving FCPS at the end of the next year, consistent with his FCSB contract. Brabrand gave no reason why he was stepping down after almost 30 years with the division. He said that through “caring connections, we make a lasting impact on our students, our community, and each other.”

During its Thursday, July 15 Meeting, the School Board considered authorizing the Request for Proposal for the Superintendent Search Firm to be released no later than 5 p.m. on July 19, 2021. Vice-Chair Sizemore Heizer thanked Dr. Brabrand for his many years of service. “I thank you for your big heart and your hard work and your love for our system. And for your grace. We are going to miss you,” Sizemore Heizer said.

School Board representative Corbett-Sanders (Mount Vernon District) provided insight into the process. She said that it takes quite a long time, and the Board was embarking on obtaining the services of an executive search firm. She added that the Board was “casting a wider net” in its search, expanding it to professionals in K-12 and college environments. In addition, the Board would be asking for specific skills, including being able to engage in multiple languages with the community. There would be a “robust community engagement process” as the Board developed the Profile of a Superintendent. The Board would engage the community in how best to vet potential candidates.

“So, this is really the beginning of the process,” Corbett-Sanders said. The Board unanimously approved the resolution.

FCSB Elects New Chair and Vice-Chair

Fairfax County School Board (FCSB) unanimously elected Stella Pekarsky (Sully District Representative) as Board Chair. Before the vote, Megan McLaughlin (Brad-dock District Representative) said Pekarsky would be “stellar” in the role because of her willingness to “always presume positive intentions, to always think broadly...[and] to make it [the Board] a safe place ...to share points of view.” Following the vote, Chair Pekar-sky said she hoped the Board would collectively center its efforts on “building community over chaos on the board.”

FCSB unanimously elected Rachna Sizemore Heizer (Member-at-Large) Vice-Chair. Elaine Tholen (Dranesville District) said Sizemore Heizer’s expertise in special education would be helpful as the Board continued its audit of special education service.

FCSB Adopts 2021-22 SR&R - Student Rights and Responsibilities Redefined

With FCSB poised to take recommended action to adopt Regulation 2601.34B Student Rights and Responsibilities (SR&R) during “Citizen Participation,” speaker Paul Woodbridge provided comment. Woodbridge said he is the parent of two FCPS graduates, gay and trans, and proud of the FCSB’s progress in promoting affirmative support and the rights of LGBTQ individuals. He was especially proud of the progress FCSB made on updating non-discrimination policies and adopting the state-mandated guidelines for supporting transgender and non-binary students. Woodbridge said his son was denied bathroom access and was asked inappropriate questions about his anatomy. His son took it upon himself to educate school administrators on how to support him and his needs. “No kid should have to play that role,” said Woodbridge.

Speaker Olivia Johnson, a parent of a gender-diverse child, said, “I have watched in horror as hate groups gather around Virginia to attack their gender-diverse kids and families.” She said transgender children are in danger of self-harm and suicide. “The best way to support them and... prevent suicide in these kids is to affirm them...The only thing we are doing is affirming our children’s pronouns, their names and allowing them to dress and express in a way that feels authentic.”

School Board Member Karl Frisch, the Board’s Providence District representative and first openly LGBTQ member sponsored the motion. He said like the school division, the changes to the SR&R were a work in progress when it came to increasing equity and achieving the strategic objective “of seeing every child by name and by need.” He told how “in the face of alarming discipline disparities experienced by students of color and with special needs,” work had been done to make SR&R “less biased and punitive and more focused on restorative justice.” “That spirit of progress continues in this revised document.”

Frisch said how the document identified several rights for gender-expansive and transgender students. “Tonight’s vote will not sweep away the pain and hurt you have experienced at the hands of careless peers or adults who should know better, but the changes we approve in this new Student Rights and Responsibilities document demonstrates our commitment to your success and safety in Fairfax County Public Schools. They are long overdue.”

The Fairfax County School Board unanimously adopted the 68-page updated School Rights and Responsibilities, Regulation 2601.35P. The regulation explained expectations for student behavior, parent engagement, and adult responses. Highlighting some changes as stated in the regulation: “[It] expanded language regarding School Resource Officers (SROs) and included specific examples of behaviors of concern... added language regarding School Resource Officers that further defined safety concern and harm [and] replaced “should” with “shall” regarding FCPS administrators questioning students for the purpose of student discipline.”

How Safe Are Older Buildings in Fairfax County?

Supervisors address construction and maintenance concerns in the wake of the Surfside Condominium collapse in Florida.

BY KEN MOORE
THE CONNECTION

A recertification program for older buildings does not currently exist under the Virginia Uniform State-wide Building Code, said Chairman Jeff McKay. And the June 24 tragedy in Surfside, Fla. involving a collapsing condominium building has heightened concern.

"This hit incredibly close to home for me. Many of you may remember about five and a half years ago, River Towers potentially was another Surfside," said Mount Vernon Supervisor Dan Storck at the Board of Supervisors meeting last Tuesday, July 13, 2021.

Storck described pillars of the Mount Vernon condominium moving two to three inches, possibly due to rusting of supports of the building close to the Potomac River.

"When the column slipped about two or three inches, if it had kept going, you clearly would have had something similar," said Storck. "Fortunately, it held or we would have had, I would say potentially 40 to 50 deaths, because there were people in those rooms at the time and clearly were impacted by what had occurred."

Fairfax County firefighters evacuated 400 residents from one of three River Towers condo buildings that shook on a Sunday afternoon in October 2016. Approximately 180 condos were damaged and 32 had "severe damage" that Fire and Rescue Services called "uninhabitable."

"You can imagine what the fallout was from that and the meetings that occurred in the community and the HOA," said Storck. "They were very difficult meetings."

"It was a very expensive process," he said.

THE BOARD requested county staff "investigate what current resources and capabilities exist for voluntary inspections of aging buildings to enhance safety, and what is possible for the county to do should more resources in the future be identified."

The Board unanimously approved the motion, raised by McKay and Sully Supervisor Kathy Smith.

In Virginia, "during construction and prior to occupancy, the inspections process is thorough and conducted with the utmost caution. After occupancy, in accordance with the Virginia Maintenance Code, buildings must be proactively maintained by the property owners to ensure their continued safety for our residents," according to Smith and McKay.

"This is not something theoretical, it's not something that we should think about, this is something we absolutely need to address and move forward," said Storck.

"With a nationwide turn to the importance of well-maintained infrastructure, we have an opportunity to highlight the importance of routine building maintenance and verification of the structural integrity of our aging buildings," said McKay.

"We have an opportunity to highlight the importance of routine building maintenance and verification of the structural integrity of our aging buildings."

— Chairman Jeff McKay

MCKAY DIRECTED county staff to what options exist locally and at the state level under the existing Virginia Maintenance Code to ensure buildings are maintained.

"I request that County staff report back to a Land Use Policy Committee meeting in the last quarter of 2021," said McKay.

"If we have folks who are concerned in the county about things that they see or things that they have been neglected in their own buildings, we want them to be able to come forward, and to provide them some technical assistance and support," he said.

"I know the state is going to be looking at this as well."

Hunter Mill Supervisor Walter Alcorn said even though Surfside is the most extreme example, "deteriorating infrastructure of these older condominiums is real and it is something that is a private matter for residents, [condo] associations and members."

"I would just note that when something is a private matter and it happens enough, somehow often it becomes a public matter," said Alcorn. Alcorn asked that staff also report back on related legislative priorities.

"The vast, vast majority of these situations that do involve deteriorating infrastructure are not any threat to the safety of the residents," Alcorn said.

Braddock Supervisor James Walkinshaw asked for the work to be incorporated into the county's climate change resilience work. "These findings are relevant to that work as well: stronger storms, extreme heat, aging buildings, flooding in some instances."

Mason District Supervisor Penny Gross recalled March 1973, when a 26-story Skyline Plaza condominium building under construction in Bailey's Crossroads collapsed, killing 14 construction workers and injuring 35. "That was an entirely different situation, it was a matter of the construction not allowing enough time for the concrete to set on each floor," she said.

"But there were changes to the Building code, not just here in the county but overall. This may be another opportunity to enhance and change some of these building codes," said Gross.

Awash in Cash?

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

With the news reports of the cash coming to state and local governments from the federal government to provide relief from the effects of the COVID pandemic and the announcement that Virginia will have a sizable cash balance at the end of this fiscal year, one could conclude that government is awash in cash!

The General Assembly will meet in a Special Session called by Governor Ralph Northam to decide how some of the new monies coming to the Commonwealth will be spent. The Governor will propose a spending plan for those funds that are allocated directly to state government within the "strings attached" from the federal government as to how the money can be spent. The total American Rescue Plan approved by the Congress so far amounts to $1.9 trillion, and that is above the Cares Act monies approved earlier. As you know from daily press reports, the President and members of Congress are working on a compromise for additional funding to ensure the economy recovers and that many infrastructure and program needs that have not been met in the past can be addressed.

Spending the amount of cash that is coming available will not be difficult. In fact, for every dollar coming available there are about five dollars in legitimate spending needs that could be addressed. Be sure that the House of Delegates is not going to spend dollars just because they come available. Strict justification will be required before an expenditure is made. The experiences of the pandemic made many needs obvious. While technology offered many solutions to schools and businesses through digital means, the need made clear the disparities in many places throughout the state in internet access. Certainly teaching by online instruction is a viable alternative to teach and to enforce learning, but it is of little value to children who live in communities without broadband access. Governor Northam has already signaled that he will propose a significant amount of money to expand broadband in the state. It will serve an educational purpose and an economic development purpose as well.

The demands on first responders, medical personnel, and teachers made clear that they are not adequately compensated for what they do. The demand to fill vacancies in these areas has become critical in many communities because of the demand in the jobs and the lack of adequate pay. The use of monies to make critical adjustments in pay for these workers will be top priority, but the response to the need must be more than a one-time bonus and must be an increase in the pay scale.

Monies from the American Rescue Plan can go to private businesses that have been particularly hard hit by the pandemic. Hotels and restaurants and small businesses may receive assistance even if they received loans under the earlier Cares Act funding.

Following its historic pattern as a triple-A rated state for the management of its financial affairs and its recent recognition for the second time as the best state in which to do business, the Commonwealth will retain its rainy day fund and reserves to rescue itself when the next economic downturn comes our way. It is wonderful that funding is coming available to meet critical needs; we must be responsible in the way we spend our cash!

Summer Camp in Age of Climate Change

Increased safety protocols result from climate change-induced, extreme temperatures.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

Some of the area's youngest aspiring thespians are spending part of their summer honing their craft at Arlington's Encore Stage & Studio's camps. Noticeably different this year than in past are new safety precautions that include mask mandates and protection from the heat.

"We've spent more time outdoors this summer because that is what parents requested," said Sara Duke, Executive Director, Encore Stage & Studio. "We've provided special training for our staff on heat safety and recognizing heat-related illnesses."

Heat safety protocols at Encore and other local camps have been revised to address not only a gradual reopening as the pandemic abates, but also the gradual increase in average temperatures partly the result of climate change.

"For sure it's causing huge extremes in weather," said Susan H.B. Agolini, Ph.D., Clare Boothe Luce Assistant Professor of Biology at Marymount University. Agolini just completed a heat mapping study as part of a team created by the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges. "Camps have to remember hydration and be aware that extreme heat can exacerbate health issues like asthma."

Employees of camps run by the Fairfax County Park Authority are given daily reminders and video training. "We send out poster reminders for signs of heat-related illnesses and the need for frequent rest/shade breaks," said Judy Pedersen, Fairfax County Park Authority. "We send out YouTube clips for supervisors to use with staff as toolbox safety talks. We also send out reminders for camps to schedule air conditioning breaks indoors throughout the day whenever possible."

A traditional summer camp experience, which includes long days spent outdoors while slathered in sunscreen and armed with insect repellent, has been curtailed for some as a result of a hike in safety warnings for children. "As extreme heat is increasing in many regions throughout the United States, it's important to know how to prevent heat illness, and to identify and treat children who are affected," said Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, M.D. Director of Epidemiology and Population Health with the Fairfax County Health Department.

Training such as that given to camp workers at Encore and Fairfax County camps include information on how to recognize the signs of heat illnesses.

"Symptoms of heat exhaustion that campers and staff should recognize include an elevated body temperature, goose bumps, dizziness or weakness, headache, increased thirst, irritability, muscle cramps, or nausea and vomiting," said Schwartz. "If any of these symptoms occur, it's important to move to a cool place, loosen clothing, put cool, wet cloth on the skin and sip water. Call 911 right away if symptoms get worse, last longer than 1 hour or if the individual

Safety measures, such as those put in place at Encore Stage & Studio in Arlington, are a response to rising temperatures and COVID-19.

begins vomiting. Always follow up with your child's pediatrician or health care provider following an instance of heat illness."

As the reality of increased temperatures and subsequent danger, safety protocols become more critical.

"Due to the pandemic, most camps are spending extra time outside this year," said Kurt Larrick, Assistant Director, Arlington County Department of Human Services. "Parents and guardians can talk to camp operators about what sort of mitigation measures they have in place for hot days, and let them know if your camper has any health issues that might be triggered by the heat."

The Langley High School Crew knocked it out of the water when the athletes ended their rowing season on June 19 at the 2021 Virginia Scholastic Rowing Championships regatta hosted by the Virginia Scholastic Rowing Association. A reported nine out of ten Langley Boats advanced to finals at States with four boats placing in the top three and one winning the State Championship for Langley Crew for the ninth consecutive year, excluding the canceled 2020 COVID season. The race competition lasted more than 10 hours before the last boat in the final heat docked.

According to VASRA Results, Langley boats took one Gold and three Bronze at the regatta held on the Occoquan Reservoir, Sandy Run Regional Park. Due to COVID restrictions, only athletes and coaches were permitted in the park. Drone recording of the regatta from Sandy Run Park allowed spectator viewing from locations outside the park.

2020 - June 2021, equated to rowing 626 miles |1,000,000 meters |100k strokes. Due to the pandemic and COVID restrictions, the Crew practiced using ergs, indoor rowers placed in the school parking lot to maintain social distancing during land training. They could measure the amount of work performed by the rower. Later they held water practice on the Occoquan Reservoir.

Boats in the regatta were either four or eight-person shells, not including the coxswain, the on-the-water crewmember, coach, and strategist who steered the boat. The rowers sat facing backward on sliding seats, each rower handling a single oar on alternate starboard and port sides of the boats. The Men's Junior 8 boat [680M-JR-8] with Saxon athletes Coxswain: Soames Rummler of Great Falls and Rowers: William Trosch of McLean, Hyunseung Moon of McLean, Tyler Abele of McLean, Benton Lake of McLean, Riley Luce of Great Falls, William Navas of Great Falls, Ryder Greeneltch of Vienna, and Nicolas Kristensen of McLean placed third [3

- 00:07.3 - 05:06.1 - Langley (3)], earning Bronze.

As the coxswain, Rummler sat at the back of the boat near the rudder with a microphone connected to speakers in front of every other rower. He was the only person who could see where the boat was going.

Asked about his role, Rummler said, “I am the brains of the boat, and the rowers are the muscles...[They] trust me to think and navigate them safely up and down the river.” As the cox, he was a conduit between the coach and the rowers. According to Rummler, he made calls to set the tempo. “We are at 36 strokes per minute at 145 power.” He made the technical and navigational calls. “Feather at three quarters slide.” Most importantly, Rummler made motivational calls. “Give it your all and harness the fire.”

The Women's-1-4 [54-W-1-4] boat with Saxon athletes Coxswain: Emma White of Great Falls and Rowers: Jacqueline Vargas of McLean, Gemma DiRienzo of Great Falls, Caroline Hanlon of McLean, and Rebeca Lacy of Great Falls placed third [3 - 00:06.5 - 06:18.9 - Langley (1)], earning Bronze.

Vargas explained that boat members must “work together to keep even handle heights, drop the oars in at the same time, and get in a rhythm for the boat to succeed.” She said all five of them showed up and worked hard “every single day.” Vargas explained Crew is bigger than just one person.

CREW demands the connection of the people in the boat and them working together towards something greater, the team's success. “You can't make it in rowing by yourself. You need the support and dedication of your teammates, coaches, parents, and the board to make Langley Crew thrive,” Vargas said.

Max Scherzer Signs Memorabilia for Women's Education Fundraiser

There is an opportunity to own memorabilia signed by Nationals pitcher Max Scherzer and at the same time support women's and girls' education. McLean Branch AAUW's Used Book Sale, its annual charitable fundraiser, has been postponed again due to lingering effects of Covid19. The substitute fundraiser will feature the Scherzer memorabilia opportunity along with a request for contributions to support education and local scholarships for women. In 2020 this fundraiser raised enough money that the branch could fund scholarships for a woman returning to college at Marymount and Trinity universities and also support women's education through AAUW Funds, a 501(c)(3) entity.

Donors will get on base with a contribution of $20 or more and also have the opportunity to hit a home run and own a Max Scherzer signed baseball, bobblehead, or baseball card. Seven donors will be happy because Max donated seven items. For each $20 contribution, the person's name will be listed. Multiples of $20 will enhance the opportunity. A computer program is used to randomly select the owners.

For more than 50 years the branch has had a used book sale, raising many thousands of dollars to support girls' and women's education. There has always been wide community support, and the branch is grateful and appreciative for that. The alternative fundraiser can't match the book sale proceeds, but it enables continuing funding of scholarships and AAUW fellowships and grants.

Contributions can be made until Aug. 15 through GoFundMe at <https://charity/gofundme.com/o/en/campaign/aauw-mclean-areas-2home-run-fundraiser-for-women-and-education>. Donations may also be sent with full name, address, and phone number to McLean Branch AAUW at P.O. Box 1002, McLean, VA 22101.

Multicultural Festival Held in Vienna

The festival featured diverse entertainment and served as a closing to the Liberty Amendments Month.

BY JESSICA FENG
THE CONNECTION

On July 17, the Vienna Multicultural Festival was held to celebrate the end of the Liberty Amendments Month. The Vienna Town Green and neighboring streets were filled with food and craft vendors as well as various performances.

“We’ve been looking forward to this because it’s the big celebration for the month-long events the Town of Vienna has been hosting,” Leslie Herman, Director of Parks and Recreation, said.

While other 63 Liberty Amendments Month events focused on the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 19th amendments, the Multicultural Festival featured a unique mix of entertainment.

“There are a variety of food vendors and crafters that have crafts from different parts of the world. We just encourage everyone to come out and purchase in order to respect our diversity,” Herman said.

Among the vendors were several stands run by community organizations. The Ayr

Rose Powhatan and her grandsons Naataani and Ashkii Auld (Navajo) performed on behalf of “WINGAPO!”.

Hill Garden Club had a table where participants could make a print using different flowers and vegetables as stamps.

“One of our members is heavily involved with the Liberty Amendments Month, so in fact, our garden club has been informed of this event ever since it was in the planning. They asked us if we would provide an activity for the children or adults,” member Nancy Moats said.

Other attendees were more politically focused, like Mallie Prythetch. She advocated on behalf of the Ally Dalsimer for Congress campaign.

“Personally, I’m always looking at different foods. Really though, I wanted to get out here and try to engage a little bit. I met the League of Women Voters who are out here registering voters, which I think is really great,” Prytherch said.

Overall, the Vienna Multicultural Festival proved successful at bringing together the community to appreciate the different aspects of Vienna. It attracted people from neighboring communities like McLean resident Roy Jonkers, who was passing through the town.

“I just dropped in because I saw there was a crowd of people and activities. The diversity in performers, especially the Bolivian Folk Music performance, surprised me. I’m really glad I got out here,” Jonkers said.

Tysons Moves Closer to 'Bike Friendly,' With Planned Bike Bridge

VDOT's project will expand bike access for shopping and commuting.

BY MIKE SALMON
THE CONNECTION

Soon bicyclists in Tysons Corner will have a bridge over the beltway connecting the McLean neighborhoods of the Dolly Madison Apartments and the Regency of McLean to the shopping area with the Virginia Department of Transportation's "Tysons/Old Meadow Road Bike/Ped Improvements" project.

Steve Ward of the Fairfax Advocates for Better Bicycling knows that any biking improvement through Tysons Corner is a plus. He's been through Tysons on his way to his office at the Pentagon, and recently changed routes to avoid it.

"Commuting in Tysons is a challenge. It is hilly and traffic is bad and drivers there are notorious scofflaws regarding speeding, turn lanes, signals, and parking," he said.

The new access route is a link for the neighborhoods inside the beltway, and this will help with the congestion, Ward says.

There are new multi-story residences being added along and around Rt. 123 at the McLean Metro, and without the trail, all of these people would have to drive to get to Tysons I, Ward noticed. "With the trail, they will now have the option to take a relatively short bike ride or walk," he said.

Phased Project

The project is being built in two phases, VDOT said. Phase I will include the bridge over I-495, past the Regency at McLean, and link to Holly Ridge Drive. Then Phase II will go northeast, along Old Meadow Road back towards Route 123.

The bridge over the beltway will require beams to be hung over I-495, which will be done in the overnight hours and will require multiple lane closures for a certain period of time. Drivers will be notified ahead of time through the VDOT outreach program, VMS boards and overhead digital signs.

The pricetag for the whole project is $13.4 million and it is financed with federal, state and local funding. Phase I is scheduled to be completed in 2022, VDOT said, and the phase II work will be scheduled when funding becomes available.

Definitely on My List

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

As the month of May was swept away with the last of the network-season’s original programming, those of us still in lockdown and quarantining had our own reality to embrace: there was nothing new on network television. Cable became the obvious choice. In particular, “Netflix” and “Prime.” Whether it was “Victoria,” “The Crown,” “Bridgerton,” “The Kominsky Method” or “The Queen’s Gambit,” many of us left the networks behind and found a new home. However, even that didn’t last forever. Soon we were back perusing the all-too-familiar weekly television viewing guide.

And in returning, I discovered a program that has been on for eight years, and never once had I seen any snippet other than a brief - and bland reference about something or other: The program is called “The Blacklist.” I knew that James Spader was the star, but I knew nothing about the storyline or any other actors involved. James Spader I knew from “Boston Legal,” a legal drama from the early 2000s which featured among other story lines, a lawyer, Alan Shore (James Spader) offering up impassioned closing arguments for whatever wrong the firm was trying to right. I can’t remember much substance but I can sure remember the feeling and conviction expressed by Spader’s character. He was mesmerizing.

And so, having exhausted “Prime and “Netflix” and a few other cable channels, we reverted back to the networks. This time though to search for a show that we had overlooked during its initial previous network programming life. We discovered or rather took a chance and selected “The Blacklist” to see what we could see. Not so much my wife, Dina, but ever since I began watching episode one, I have been entranced. To say I’ve been binge-watching makes light of all those who have previously binge-watched. I have watched approximately 80 episodes, not at one sitting (to be fair, I have watched multiple episodes multiple times) and am presently halfway through season five. They have been renewed for a ninth season starting in the fall of ‘21 so if I were planning on being current by then, I would need to have watched 22 episodes per year times seven years plus half of season eight: that’s about 175 shows, each one running 42 minutes give or take without commercials. That adds up to over 122+ hours of television. That would test any committed viewer’s patience and schedule. Presuming I have a life other than my couch and television, the prospect seems a bit daunting and to be honest, perhaps a bit foolish. I mean, life goes on doesn’t it? James Spader gets paid whether I watch him or not, doesn’t he? As for the networks, I’m pretty sure they’re getting paid as well whether I’m in front of the television or not. Now if I were getting paid for my viewership, I would definitely hop on the couch. However, that’s not happening - not in my wildest dreams so I’m afraid I’ll have to fend for myself. Still, in spite of calculating the hours necessary to get current with the show and considering the life I would need to live to reach this nirvana, I am not put off by the arithmetic or the challenge. I don’t intend to commit every waking hour to fulfilling this goal, especially if one were to consider how the return of the fall shows in September would adversely impact my viewing flexibility. More shows to watch would create less opportunity to focus on any one show.

Nevertheless, there are approximately three months-ish until original programming returns to the networks in the fall. I don’t have to have completed my pursuit by then. It’s not as if I’m fulfilling some kind of contract. Hardly. All I’m fulfilling is a cockeyed plan to binge-watch more than eight seasons of a show that up until now, I barely knew existed. Now, not only does it exist, it’s sort of the focus of my life (cancer notwithstanding). Granted, it’s not very exciting, but it sure is predictable. And for a cancer patient recently re-diagnosed, predictable is good. I just hope the show ends before I do.
