temperatures and sunshine beaming from a cloudless blue sky made the backdrop for the Harvest Festival at Cabin John Village. From flowers and produce in shades of vivid orange and deep red to live music and twisted balloon art for children, event goers soaked up the beauty of the changing seasons.

There were pumpkins aplenty including the wooden, decorative variety that were carved by hand and painted orange by Collin Clifford of Clifford Creations. His woodwork offerings included bowls and cutting boards.

White Oak Middle School in Silver Spring. In the midst of the seasonal celebration, Amelia Meyers Rosenwach and her two children, five year-old Lila and two year old Helena, danced to the beat of music from a live DJ. Lila, dressed like a Disney Princess, pranced and bowed as though she were in front of a live audience.

"She loves to dance," said Meyers, who is an actress and the reigning Mrs. Maryland Petite USA.

A booth teeming with green plants like cacti and flowers in vibrant oranges and deep-reds was the offering from Steven Ornstein of Edge Floral Event Designers.

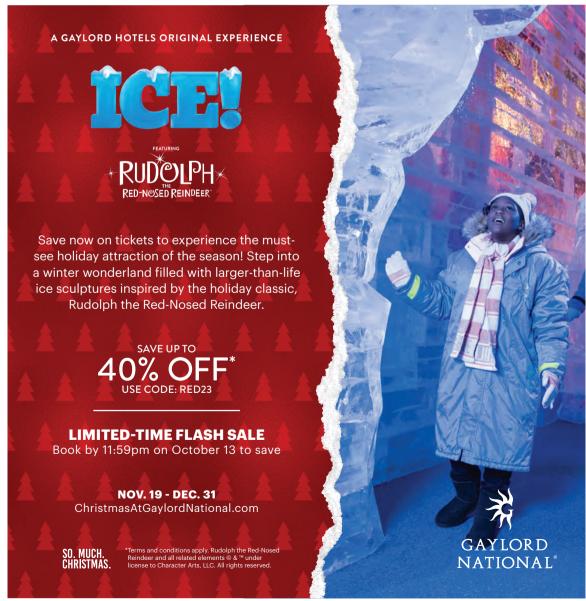

Part of his display was an antique truck that he'd planned to decorate with flowers. However Ornstein's plan was thwarted by eager children who were mesmerized by the vehicle.

"My plan was to put flowers on the top," he said. "We usually do that, but today the kids were climbing in it, so I decided to let the children have fun with it."

Among those enjoying the truck were Marlee Shadman and her children five-year old Ava and three-year old Mia.

"The line for balloons was long so we decided to check it out while we were waiting for it to get a little shorter," she said. "The festival has been great. The kids are loving it."

ADAM AND COURTNEY GREEN-BERG BRING NEW YORK BA-GELS AND A POTOMAC PIZZA RENOVATION TO POTOMAC

Adam and Courtney Greenberg, owners of Potomac Pizza, Bagels 'n Grinds, and the recently acquired Hunter's Bar and Grill, announced plans to further transform the Potomac culinary scene by bringing Bagels 'n Grinds to the Potomac Village. The Greenbergs, who took over full operations of Hunter's Bar and Grill on Wednesday, September 27th with longtime manager and partner Daniel Seaman and Corporate Chef Tennille Middleton (Chef Tee), additionally announced the renovation of the original Potomac Pizza.

Located at 9812 Falls Road, the renovation of Potomac Pizza and the opening of Bagels 'n Grinds are expected to be completed in mid-2024. Bagels 'n Grinds is set to take over the vacant retail space adjacent to Potomac Pizza once occupied by The Potomac Village Deli, a previous Greenberg-owned business.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY ANNOUNCES 'WALKTOBER' EVENTS TO PROMOTE WALKING

The Montgomery County Department of Transportation (MCDOT) is partnering with the State to celebrate "Walktober," a month-long series of activities in October promoting Maryland's official exercise: walking. Maryland named walking as the official State exercise in 2008. MCDOT will be hosting a series of outreach events throughout the County designed to highlight the importance of walking. Walktober events will include:

Monday, Oct. 16-Nov. 3, Walk & Ride – Group Walking Challenges. Employees who work for businesses located within the County's six Transportation Management Districts can register for team walks and compete for prizes based on their step counts. Employees do not need to be physically present at the worksite to be on a Walk & Ride team – and they do not need to be County residents. More information, including on how to register, is available at MCDOT's Commuter Services Walk

& Ride website. Thursday, Oct. 26, Equity

Walkinar. MCDOT's Bikeways Coordinator, Matt Johnson, will be featured on a State panel for a free webinar to discuss tools and techniques for addressing transportation equity. He will give an overview of Montgomery County's efforts to develop a toolkit to improve the designs of roads, sidewalks, and transit stops for people with vision disabilities and the planning and design processes to improve their ability to provide feedback. He will be joined by Michael Rodriguez, director of Research for Smart Growth America, and Charles L. Marohn, Jr., founder and president of Strong Towns. Register for the free Equity webinar. For a full list of free walkinars, visit the MDOT website.

Pedestrian Safety Outreach.

The SRTS team will be at various locations throughout the month to promote pedestrian and bicycle safety and talk with residents about recent safety improvements, including infrastructure projects and pedestrian hybrid beacons.

Not Funny or Fun

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Rather, somber, and sad. Today, Sept. 23, I went to the cemetery to visit my parents. It is my deceased father's birthday. Born in 1919, he died in early Dec. 2006. He was a great father and my biggest booster. I miss him terribly, and for you regular readers, he's not totally unfamiliar to you as I often invoke his memory with miscellaneous memories/anecdotes. My mother lies beside him at the cemetery, having died almost exactly two years later to the day in early Dec. as well, in 2008. (As it coincidentally happened, my brother Richard died on the same day as my mother had 14 years before.)

Which brings me to the point/feeling behind this column being written. As of this past Dec. when Richard died, I am now the sole survivor of the immediate family of which I had been a part. With Richard's passing, todays visit was my first to the cemetery without any back-up. Previously, my brother or myself - or both, would make sure our parents were remembered on their birthdays with on-site visits (though we often remember them as we recall a lifetime of memories). But I'm by myself now. There will likely be no other visitors to my parent's gravesite (my brother was cremated) as their lives, as in their friends and family, were either in Massachusetts where they were born, or Florida when they moved south to retire. We moved them to Maryland - while they were still healthy, for them to be closer to us so we'd all be together.

Since neither Richard nor I had children, I really am the last in – and of, a line, extending back who knows how many generations in Russia/the former Baltic States. I only know about my grandparents, and not that much. Records of Jewish births and deaths were hardly respected and protected administratively in the former USSR. With Richard's death, yours truly (our respective wives notwithstanding, as I'm genetically referring here to blood relations) become the go-to-because-everyone-else-is-gone person (immediate family members).

And not that I haven't felt lonely since my brother died, last Dec. 3rd, but in visiting my parents today for the first time since then his passing, I really felt his loss since I am now the last man standing, so to speak. Richard wouldn't be coming by and leaving flowers as he often did, so it was just me – and my thoughts. And as I stood over my parent's graves, wishing my father a Happy Birthday and talking about Richard, his loss became even deeper than I had felt it previously. The reality of it his death hit me harder than it has in months. I'm all that's left.

This feeling, which manifests regularly, especially since my brother and I share so many interests and attitudes; none more than cancer as he had been diagnosed with colon cancer a few months before he died (and yet another subject we had in common; I have thyroid cancer) enveloped me at the gravesite. There I am standing over my parent's graves, talking about my brother having died; and the finality of our family's existence and of my position in it as being the sole survivor of the Louries (or whatever my paternal grandfather's names in the former USSR, was before he immigrated), after hundreds of years and who knows how many generations spanning across however many countries, nearly took my breath away. Heavy duty, man.

To summarize: once I was diagnosed with cancer in 2009 and given a "terminal" diagnosis (stage IV lung cancer), I never thought my brother would predecease me, even though he was almost five years older me. And I had certain feeling of security knowing I would/could always be able to count on my brother, especially since he was my second biggest booster – after my father. And now, having to live the rest of my life without the backstop of all backstops will be extremely challenging, and very unfamiliar. Losing the resource that you count on and rely upon the most, is more than just upsetting the applecart; it's destroying it. It's not exactly how I anticipated living the rest of my life. I'll just have to make the best of a bad situation. My brother wouldn't expect any less. And I certainly have no intention of disappointing him in death any more than I would in life.
