Culpepper Garden President Marta Hill Gray and other members of Culpepper Garden leadership receive the $2 million check from Sen. Mark Warner and Rep. Don Beyer.

Warner, Beyer Present Check at Culpepper Gardens

U.S. Sen. Mark Warner (D-VA) and U.S. Rep. Don Beyer (VA-08) presented the staff of Culpepper Garden with a $2.03 million check at a community town hall on May 20 at the senior living facility in Arlington. In March, Sen. Warner's office helped secure the $2.03 million grant for Culpepper Garden as part of a Senate appropriations bill that will fund a housing revitalization project to improve accessibility and safety at Culpepper Garden, which serves at-risk older adults living on very low and fixed incomes.

"We are immensely grateful to Senator Warner and Congressman Beyer for visiting us today and for their continued commitment to providing affordable housing for at-risk older adults. We know that stable and quality housing leads to better health outcomes for vulnerable older adults, and these earmarks will go directly towards improving our facilities and our residents' quality of life," said Culpepper Garden President Marta Hill Gray, "So many of our residents struggle to afford housing and the care they need amidst soaring costs of living. If not for Culpepper Garden, many of our residents would end up unhoused. This funding comes at a crucial time and will make an incredible difference for our residents."

As the first assisted living facility in the country to receive federal rent subsidies from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Culpepper Garden is a model for enhancing access to specialized housing and care for older adults who need it the most. As it stands, low-cost assisted living facilities are few and far between. The current waitlist for an apartment in Culpepper Gardens' Assisted Living wing is two years long.

While taking questions during the town hall, Sen. Warner reassured residents that he will continue to protect basic Medicare and SNAP benefits, which many Culpepper Garden residents rely on, because they are crucial to overall well being and result in favorable health outcomes.

"I believe that rent subsidies and other graduated programs make a huge amount of sense. Too often, in almost all of our government programs, we have a cliff — if you make a dollar less than the [threshold] number, you get ... benefits .... But if you make a dollar more, you lose everything," said Warner while speaking to Culpepper Garden residents, "For supplemental housing assistance, it's going to take a partnership between the feds, the state, and local governments to institute more graduated subsidies across a series of programs."

Located on 4+ acres in the heart of Arlington, Culpepper Gardens' affordable, assisted living wing was the first in the U.S. and the only one that exists in Arlington. Founded 52 years ago, Arlington Retirement Housing Corporation (ARHC) is the nonprofit owner of Culpepper Garden.

Culpepper Garden provides 350 affordable independent and assisted-living apartments for low-income older Arlingtonians and is home to a vast green space that is home to more than 30,000 daffodils and native Virginia plants.

Bike to Work Or Just For Fun

BY SHIRLEY RUHE
ARLINGTON CONNECTION

Anne Forney has just biked 12 minutes from her job at Georgia Tech Research Institute in Rosslyn and made a quick stop for a strawberry-banana popsicle at the Lyon Village pit stop on Langston Boulevard for Bike to Work Day. This is an annual event to promote biking as an option for commuting to work.

"I'm halfway home to where I live in Cherrylee. My husband will be along in an hour or so."

Russell and Allison Farrow have biked in from Falls Church "just for this." Allison had hit the Rosslyn site this morning along the extensive Arlington bike trails, and this afternoon she and Russell were back at the Lyon Village stop.

Normally Allison bikes from Falls Church to south of Alexandria where she works for NSF. "They're all set up for bikers at work with a bike cage and showers." Russell works from home so he bikes for fun. "My favorite ride is to Reston on the W&OD Trail because you ride through the countryside."

Ginger Brown, who is in charge of the Lyon Village site, says they have had a steady stream of bikers since they opened at 3 p.m. "A lot of neighborhood folk work from home and they stop by." She adds, "I think they like our goodie bags." To demonstrate, she pulls out a black "Bike Arlington" towel, two peanut butter dark chocolate energy bars, an extensive bike map and an original Earth Day lithograph by Amber Haynes, a local artist.

Another biker pulls up and checks the registration list. "What's your size?" Brown asks and hands over a medium orange Bike Arlington 2024 T-shirt. Kane says they had ordered 80 popsicles to hand out to thirsty bikers but King of Pops had thrown in extra "just in case."

Bike to Work Day had seven pit stops located around the county for this annual event from Shirlington to Ballston to the Langston location. Bike to Work Day is held annually on May 17 in the United States, Europe, Asia and Canada. This year there were 110 stops in the metropolitan D.C. area, Virginia and Maryland.

Closer Look: Conflicted Art from Ukraine.

At Mason Exhibitions Arlington, 3601 Fairfax Drive, Arlington. Curated by Sophie Bae with Conflicted Art's Yevgen Nemchenko, the new exhibition offers a nuanced exploration of the impact of war through the lens of contemporary Ukrainian artists. In an era saturated with media coverage of conflict, it is easy to feel overwhelmed and detached from the deeper questions surrounding the persistence of war in the 21st century. A Closer Look: Conflicted Art from Ukraine seeks to bridge that gap by showcasing the work of 13 Ukrainian artists who confront head-on the experiences of direct conflict. Through photography, video, painting, sculpture, literature, and installation, these artists offer a multifaceted perspective from the fringes of this conflict. Their works invite viewers to engage in dialogue beyond statistics and headlines and to examine core issues of existence distorted by violence and uncertainty.

MAY 21 TO JULY 7

At Signature Theatre, ARK Theatre, Arlington. A poignant, beautiful musical of parallel journeys from the writer of Apple TV+'s The Morning Show and directed by Timothy Douglas (Signature's The Color Purple). As he traces their journey across America, and bonds with the music his father adored, time blurs and erases the distance between them. Lyrical storytelling and an evocative folk score drive father and son to rediscover love, each other and their everlasting bond. <https://www.sigtheatre.org/events/202324/where-the-mountain-meets-the-sea/>

"Drill Baby, Drill" ...

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

... is not what I was telling my dentist recently – during multiple visits (I use that term lightly). After years of dental neglect, I've finally had "some work done," as they say. And if I were to be saying anything, it would have been "pull, doctor, pull." But given the number of teeth extracted over two four-hour appointments, the dentist didn't need any encouragement from me. He was quite clear and determined to pull all the teeth fit to be removed. The number might have totaled a baker's dozen before all was "Novocained" and pulled.

This dental journey began with Dr. Frimm in Newton Centre, Ma. He was the family dentist that tended to all the Louries. From a young age then I was indoctrinated into the world/need for dentistry. Fast forward to the last few years. I had continued to be a regular visitor to the dentist until my long-time adult-era dentist died somewhat unexpectedly at his age 72. Though the practice sent out an email announcing his death, there were no referrals included. I was, in effect, set adrift-ish. As a result, me and my teeth were left to fend for themselves. With no more electronic reminders from a dentist, I had no reason/reminder to schedule an appointment with the dentist, if you know what I mean (barring any immediate teeth issues: crowns, root canals, sensitivity to hold or cold, etc. cetera)?

As you might imagine, my teeth and gums suffered accordingly. The lack of enamel that finally broke Kenny's resistance was the failure of a main tooth (three from the center on the top left) to hold its respective place. If it were Halloween, I would have had the perfect look to go as a hockey player. I wouldn't say I looked like "The Great Eight," when he has his game face on (I believe his missing tooth is on the upper right); nevertheless, since it's not Halloween, the toothless look is not what I was after. Moreover, with crowns missing their tops and other teeth issues: teeth missing, teeth cracked) and the difficulty eating as I didn't have enough teeth – top or bottom to masticate (grind and chew) my food into small enough pieces, it was, as my late mother would say: "Enough already." Combine that with the dry-throat side effect from my cancer medicine and eating/swallowing not only became a challenge, it also became a fear, as food occasionally would get stuck in my throat. That meant of course, no air and no breathing, very scary. (It only needs to happen once before you know you never want it to happen again, so you begin to take precautions. After years of miscellaneous precautions, a visit to the dentist became an inevitability.)

I'm not exactly a shell of my former self but eating had taken on an entire new modus operandi. It was no longer about pleasure, it became more about avoiding pain – and death, if you want to know the truth? Death caused-by-blockage. Because I might not have had the required amount of patience – and teeth, quite frankly, while eating (trying to eat slowly and chew my food), I often ended up swallowing larger pieces of food that my mouth/throat couldn't quite handle. Soon, it became obvious, even to me that I couldn't ever take a bite of food without a glass of something nearby (as well as "bite-sizing" to very small portions). And the few times I neglected to take this precaution, like with a dessert, I nearly paid the ultimate price. After a year or two of this recurring difficulty, combined with the other teeth/dental issues I was experiencing, I bit the bullet (not really) and made the necessary dental arrangements which has led to this column. (As for the real pain: the cost of all this work and the meager coverage offered by your typical dental insurance policy covering up to $1,000/$1,500 per year, as an example, paying for this volume of repair and replace is something else that's been hard to swallow.)

It's been nearly a month now – and two payments since this dental journey began. I'm not quite home free yet, but I'm a lot closer to the promised land (although medical and dental procedures rarely come with promises) and a return to dental normalcy. Dental normalcy meaning – for me, that I can chew and swallow my food without fear, and without making absolutely sure there's glass of something nearby, just in case the not-expected thing happens. In addition, I'll have completed my dental payment plan so even though I may be cash poor, I'll be teeth rich. This dental business will address, finally, a situation I've been anticipating and worrying about for years. Using my cancer diagnosis as an excuse as in, why bother, it was easy to back-burner the dental demands until I looked like hell and had difficulty swallowing my food, so much so that mealtime had become fear time. And the last thing a cancer patient needs is additional fear. Cancer fear is more than enough on its own. Oddly enough, having my dental issues resolved seems to make dealing with my cancer easier in some respects. And easier will come at a time when my cancer issues may once again be rearing its very ugly head. As Rachel Maddow says: "Watch this space."

POLICE TAKE PART IN SPRING 2024 CLICK IT OR TICKET CAMPAIGN

The Arlington County Police Department, in partnership with The U.S. Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), is urging drivers to buckle up ahead of a national Click It or Ticket high-visibility seat belt enforcement effort. The national seat belt campaign, which coincides with the Memorial Day holiday, runs from May 20 to June 2, 2024.

According to NHTSA, there were 11,302 unbuckled passenger vehicle occupants killed in crashes throughout the United States in 2022. In that same year, among young adults 18 to 34 killed while riding in passenger vehicles, more than half (60%) were completely unrestrained — one of the highest percentages for all age groups. The Click It or Ticket campaign combines powerful messages about seat belt safety with high-visibility enforcement for unbuckled motorists.

Virginia law requires everyone under the age of 18 to be properly secured in a safety belt or child safety seat no matter where they are sitting in the vehicle, and the driver is responsible for making sure this happens. In addition, Virginia law requires everyone in the front seat of vehicles to be properly restrained, regardless of age, and those 18 and older can be ticketed.

Practice safe driving habits, like buckling your seat belt, on each and every ride to help ensure that you arrive at your destination safely.

PATHFORWARD RECEIVES $1.3M FOR PURCHASE OF ARLINGTON APARTMENT BUILDING

Thanks to a federal government appropriation, spearheaded by Congressman Don Beyer (D-VA), PathForward announced that it will purchase Sibert House, an eight-unit property that serves chronically homeless individuals who have faced significant housing barriers.

PathForward President and CEO Betsy Frantz stated, "Handing the keys to newly housed clients is just the first step to stability and dignity for them. To remain housed, they require individualized services including regular medical and mental healthcare and ongoing case management. Thank you to Rep. Don Beyer and his staff for leading this game-changing appropriation through the complex federal approval process."

"The $1,342,704 in federal funding I secured for PathForward will support the purchase of the Sibert House, an apartment building in the Westover neighborhood of Arlington County serving unhoused individuals who have struggled to obtain and remain in permanent housing," said Congressman Beyer. "Sibert House stands as a beacon of hope and opportunity for people who have suffered from chronic homelessness. Every person deserves a dignified and safe place to call home, and this funding will be critical in supporting PathForward's efforts to continue providing these life-changing services in our community. I thank PathForward for their support in identifying and developing this project request, and their work to uplift the most vulnerable among us."

National Police Week 2024, Annual Candlelight Vigil

On May 13, The National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund officially added the 282 names of U.S. law enforcement officers who died in the line of duty to the Memorial Wall in Washington, D.C., as part of the 36th Annual Candlelight Vigil of the 2024 National Police Week. The newly added officers' names inscribed on the wall include 118 federal, state, tribal, and local law enforcement officers who died in the line of duty in 2023 and 164 who died in previous years.

"Their sacrifice is now being recognized after the Memorial Fund's research staff confirmed the circumstances of their death and their record of law enforcement service," states a release by the Memorial Fund. The vigil's purpose was to dedicate, honor, and remember all the newly added officers by reading aloud their names on the Roll Call of Heroes Honored in 2024.

William Alexander, CEO of The National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund, stated, "Their memory remains a testament to valor and selflessness, two core tenets that a law enforcement officer abides by when sworn into service."

According to reports, 30,000 people gathered at the mall that night. Numerous officers, including those from the Fairfax County Police Department, wore their respective uniforms. Among the many others appeared to be bereaved families of fallen officers, some with children. Listening intently to each name read aloud; the crowd stood silent under the shared weight of all the officers who died in public service and their families' losses.

Chief Kevin Davis, Fairfax County Police Department, read a section of the Roll Call of Heroes, 2024. "From the Commonwealth of Virginia, Joseph Edward Carey, Sr.; Mark Christopher Wagner, II (bell tolls). From the State of West Virginia, Steven Paul Gitlin, II; Cory Stephen Maynard (bell tolls)."

Terrica Gibson, a survivor, says, "The wall remembers and honors them."

The National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund reports that, with new names in 2024, the wall now bears the names of 24,067 officers. Among the names are six Fairfax County Police Department law enforcement. They are Sergeant John Joseph Donohue, EOW: Wednesday, Feb. 23, 2022, cause: COVID-19; Second Lieutenant Francis Joseph Stecco, EOW: Saturday, Oct. 25, 2008, cause: drowned; Master Police Officer Michael E. Garbarino, EOW: Wednesday, May 17, 2006, cause: gunfire; Detective Vicky Anne Owen Armel, EOW: Monday, May 8, 2006, cause: gunfire; Captain Tommy F. Bernal, EOW: Thursday, June 28, 2001, cause: motorcycle crash; and Police Officer Karen Jean Bassford, EOW: Wednesday, July 27, 1977, cause: automobile crash.

According to preliminary data compiled by The National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund in its 2023 End-of-Year Preliminary Law Enforcement Officers Fatalities Report, 47 officers were shot and killed in the line of duty. Compared to the 63 officers shot and killed in 2022, this number represents a 25 percent decrease. However, the report states, "The number of men and women fatally wounded by gunfire remains a pressing concern for law enforcement personnel."

The report cites that traffic-related incidents claimed the lives of 37 officers in 2023, a 27 percent decrease from 51 in 2022.
