Members of historically Black fraternities and sororities volunteered to assemble and distribute Thanksgiving meal kits.

Families volunteered together to help pack and distribute holiday meal kits.

Project Give Back Donates 400 Thanksgiving Boxes

The air was cold but the spirit was warm on Saturday morning (Nov. 20) at the Gum Springs Community Center, where volunteers from Northern Virginia Project Give Back congregated to pack and distribute Thanksgiving food boxes for local families.

"Given the pandemic last year, we were limited and only able to distribute gift cards. This year, we are back in action, with real, nutritious food going out to the people who need it," said Walter Smiley, Walter Smiley, Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity and Project Give Back organizer.

Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity and event organizer. "We have been doing this a long time and each year the need grows. We are appreciative of all the people who come together to donate time and money to make this happen."

Food boxes featured frozen turkeys, fresh vegetables, stuffing mix, ground turkey and gift cards. Project Give Back partnered with local community volunteers and organizations to identify local families in need and bring the food to them. The organization also packed two

U-Hauls full of food kits and made personal deliveries.

Project Give Back invited the Fairfax County Health Department to participate in the event. Their Mobile COVID-19 Testing Clinic was on-site to provide testing to attendees and volunteers. With winter holiday gatherings ahead, many took a COVID-19 test in advance of getting together with families this week.

Volunteers with the Fairfax County Health Department's Stronger2 initiative were also on site to help measure the health needs of the local community in the local neighborhood. Stronger2 aims to improve health literacy among local African-American, African and Hispanic communities. Several historically Black fraternity and sorority members who participate in Project Give Back also serve on Stronger2. Stronger2 volunteers from Fundación Los Niños de María helped attendees complete needs assessments. The data will be used to establish and deliver public health programs in the community.

Northern Virginians Aid Afghan Evacuee Family

Support Crosses Three Continents

THE CONNECTION

This is the story of one family's successful evacuation from Afghanistan to escape the brutal policies and actions of the Taliban. It's also the story of how groups of northern Virginia residents made the evacuation possible in the face of shrinking hope and rising danger, and how they helped one family start their journey to freedom and safety.

There are many Afghan families whose stories are similar to this family's and many neighbors who felt the call to help. Situated so close to the global seat of power that is Washington D.C., many residents in our area are among those involved in high profile events. What makes this story different is that local people took on the role that the government could not, making the ultimate difference in the lives of many who aided the U.S. in time of war.

Ron Green served in Afghanistan in the 528th Special Operation Support Battalion from 2000-2003; his wife served in Kandahar in 2005-06. and fellow veteran Thomas Koppen. Koppen's Afghan translator, Javid, who served in support of U.S. troops through 2017, had called seeking assistance. Javid's long period of application for a Special Immigrant Visa, begun in 2016, had not been finalized. Dangers and pressures were building in the final days of U.S. troop withdrawal. Javid was desperately worried for his safety and his family's.

The Special Immigrant Visa program is available to people who worked with the U.S. Armed Forces or under Chief of Mission authority as a translator or interpreter in Iraq or Afghanistan.

When Green's friends recognized there was no existing system within the State Department or Department of Defense that could coordinate with these allied families like Javid's, the veterans organized. They took on the task of getting the interpreter and his family out of danger. In what Fox described as a "spider web" of contacts, including those from her service in Kandahar Province and

Mount Vernon Area's Big Trees

BY GLENDA C. BOOTH
MOUNT VERNON GAZETTE

As winter approaches and deciduous trees shed their leaves, their “bones” stand out, arborists say. Winter is a good time to study some of the big, old trees in the Mount Vernon area. Some loom like giant sentinels, spirits of the forest.

“Trees are too large, too majestic, too important and too much a part of nature to be ignored,” wrote C. E. Brockman in Trees of North America. “From the human point of view, trees are a multipurpose natural resource without equal.”

George Washington's Trees

From January 1785 to the middle of 1786, General George Washington devoted many of his energies to the landscape of his Mount Vernon plantation and sought the most “clever kind of trees (especially flowering ones),” he wrote, “for my walks, groves and wildernesses.” For many trees, he only had to go to nearby forests and transplant saplings to his desired spot.

Today, seven trees from Washington's time still stand, the oldest a chestnut oak. Arborists call the seven trees “witness trees” because they are part of a historic landscape and have remained in place years after key historic events. The historic tree that most of today's visitors see is one of two tulip poplars that Washington, or more likely enslaved people on his estate, planted in 1785 on the west lawn. It is now over 130 feet high.

On National Park Service land near Mount Vernon's parking lot is a white oak, estimated to be 163 years old about 10 years ago, according to Brent Steury, Natural Resources Program Manager with the George Washington Memorial Parkway. Nearby is a southern red oak around 150 years old.

osage orange tree is 75 years. The River Farm tree is over 58 feet tall with an average crown spread of more than 90 feet. The tree is on the Virginia Big Tree Register as an honorable mention, ranked fifth largest among documented living specimens. Osage orange trees have a three to five-inch, green, orange-like fruit that falls to the ground in the fall.

Huntley Meadows Park

What Cathy Ledec calls “two glorious swamp chestnut oaks” command attention at Huntley Meadows Park. Ledec chairs the Fairfax County Tree Commission and is president of the Friends of Huntley Meadows Park.

One tree is 93 feet tall and 71 inches in diameter-at-breast-height (DBH), the spot above ground where tree experts take measurements. The second tree is 98 feet tall and 67 inches at DBH.

A 2019 analysis reported that the trees' exact ages are “nearly impossible to discern.” Other reports suggest that the trees were likely planted between 1824 and 1844. Both are also considered to be witness trees. They may have been planted as boundary markers for Huntley, Thompson Francis Mason's summer getaway on a bluff near the park. Mason was the mayor of Alexandria from 1827 to 1830 and grandson of George Mason IV of Gunston Hall.

are threatened by development, air and water pollution, salt de-icers, climate change, invasive vines, intentional destruction and other factors.

Trees provide ecological services. They reduce evaporation, enhance ground water restoration and absorb excess nutrients from runoff. Trees are also “carbon sinks,” consuming more carbon dioxide, a greenhouse or heat-trapping gas, than they emit. Trees also absorb other pollutants like ozone, carbon monoxide and sulfur dioxide. They provide habitat for birds, squirrels, insects and other animals.

For homeowners, trees can provide privacy and windbreaks and reduce glare. Because the leaves of deciduous trees absorb or deflect radiant energy from the sun, trees can lower air conditioning costs.

“Large deciduous trees planted on the east, west and northwest sides of your home create soothing shade from the hot summer sun and reduce summer air conditioning costs by up to 35 percent,” according to the Arbor Day Foundation.

“Healthy, mature trees add an average of 10 percent to a property's value and landscaping with trees can increase property values as much as 20 percent,” says Fairfax County's website.

Trees can even provide psychological services, like reducing stress. A University of

A week later, in the Kingstowne parking lot, the circle of tire marks are a reminder of the street racing incident.

Street Racers Strike in Kingstowne

Tire marks remain long after the motorists fled.

BY MIKE SALMON
GAZETTE PACKET

The parking lot in Kingstowne became a meeting place for street racers in the over-night hours of Saturday, Nov. 13, and the reckless swagger and loud mufflers rang out before the police to put a lid on it all.

There is a ring of tire marks in one section of the lot where the donuts took place.

Bill, shopping cart attendant at Giant saw all the action while collecting carts from the lot.

“Bunch of kids doing donuts, cops were trying to chase them down,” he said.

According to the police, officers were called to the area for reports of 100-200 cars driving recklessly with a large crowd gathered. Officers worked to disperse the crowds, and two minor crashes occurred. No injuries were reported. Officers are currently working through the investigation, reviewing any video and photo evidence, the FCPD said.

To the area residents, the police reports conflict with what they saw, say several people on social media.

“We wondered about that. We saw cars with license plate details covered up,” said Jeannine Deem Purdy on Facebook.

Nicole Glynn Miller listened on a scanner that seemed to indicate more than just a traffic incident. “A cop told the entire world listening to the police scanner that they had fireworks thrown at them and beer bottles,” she wrote. There were no arrests according to police.

There were questions flying around about tickets given out, police officers being outnumbered and the stories changing up by officials, or developing.

Supervisor Rodney Lusk (D-Lee) issued a “Full Statement on the Kingstowne Street Race Disturbance,” as he called it.

“I am aware of the event that occurred in Kings-

towne last Saturday where a crowd of over a hundred people were engaging in an unsafe car meet-up. As Chair of the Public Safety Committee, I take instances like what occurred Saturday extremely seriously. I am pleased with the immediate response of the Fairfax County Police Department, and I commend them on their ability to disperse the crowd without further escalation or injuries. As the investigation continues, I’m personally committed to advocating for any resources that FCPD, and specifically the Franconia Station, require to prevent any such future disturbances,” it said.

Lusk also issued a statement from Captain James Krause, Commander of the Franconia District Station:

“We will continue to work with our business owners as well as other County partners to prevent and deter similar incidents from happening in the future. Our officers monitor social media platforms for events throughout the County. Commanders at each district station allocate resources to address any concerns that may be posed to our community.” They urged anyone that sees dangerous driving behavior in progress to call 911 or the non-emergency number at 703-691-2131.

Reports of using cars and motorcycles recklessly are coming in from other areas too. According to posts on a gossip website, street racers have used Cinder Bed Road in the Newington area, or they would “meet at the shell in Burke and run on 123.”

In July, there was an intersection blockage at Fourth and Tangey streets S.E. in Washington, D.C., where the drivers did donuts in the intersection, blocking traffic. There is a film of this on YouTube. “These people are just testing the limits of what they can get away with,” said one comment.

A Tale of Two Claras in the Nutcracker

Juggling the roles makes for a whirlwind weekend at Metropolitan Arts School.

BY MIKE SALMON
THE CONNECTION

The Nutcracker story is full of timeless characters that play out the story in similar fashions, but each with a special aspect that sets it apart from year to year. At the Metropolitan School of the Arts in Kingstowne, there are two young women playing Clara, one of the main characters, and the two dancers are having the time of their lives at Metropolitan while playing the same character.

"We do work together, but we want to make it unique, so we do our Clara's different," said Sara Yoon, a Clara for the next few weeks along with Meghan Ong, the other Clara. In the first weekend in December, the show is on two times a day, and the Claras switch for each show, taking on different roles when they're not Clara. Meghan's other role is a snow soloist while Sara's is an Arabian soloist.

"We are dancing the whole final act without a break, it's very tiring," said Meghan.

One thing they have in common is the love of dance and their dedication to the Metropolitan. Sara, age 16, is in her 10th year performing the Nutcracker at Metropolitan and Meghan is in her fifth year. They both have made friends through the dance studio, gained skills in dancing and discipline, and now get a chance to show what they've learned on stage in a main role in front of a live audience.

"My parents put me in dance to get all the energy out, and I stayed with it," Meghan said.

All this running around, dancing, singing and working with others is part of the training. At Metropolitan, some graduates go on to bigger and better things in dance. Some enroll in performance colleges, and beyond. One former student, Brianna Latrash, had roles on the dance team at Kings Dominion one summer, and on Broadway.

It all starts with a roll in a performance like the Nutcracker though. "It keeps them inspired and they go on to bigger things," said Jackie Doherty at Metropolitan. "Even the younger ones, it keeps them inspired."

Over the summer, both Sara Yoon and Meghan Ong attended ballet school out of the area. Megan did five

SENIOR LIVING

History Revisited

Local African-Americans in their 80s and 90s say Rittenhouse verdict shows that Jim Crow is still alive and well.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
GAZETTE PACKETT

The memory of being told that her father was dead is still vivid in the mind of 89-year-old Kit Lewis. He had been lynched and was found hanging from a tree. The men who murdered him were not charged with a crime, says Lewis, who lives in Alexandria, but was born in Mississippi. Learning that Kyle Rittenhouse had been acquitted of murder after claiming his actions were in self-defense, conjured up memories of her father's murder.

"I thought those days were behind us," she said. "That verdict goes to show that our lives are not valued and are not equal to those of white. If a black man had done that and claimed self-defense, he would probably have been sentenced to life behind bars."

African-American octogenarians and nonagenarians, who came of age in the 1920s and 30s, often feared for their lives and freedom because of a justice system that placed a much higher value on the lives of whites than blacks. They now fear for the lives of their children and grandchildren, and say that Kyle Rittenhouse's acquittal proves that the justice system that they experienced as young men and women is still in place.

After 87-year-old Ethyl Norris's daughter passed away from breast cancer, leaving behind two young children, Norris began raising them. Marvin and Carmyn are now 21 and 19 respectively. Both of her grandchildren, who are now in college, are planning to drive home for the Thanksgiving holiday. Norris has mixed emotions about grandson traveling this year. While she loves to see him, she always worries when he's driving on the highway.

"Marvin is a smart, educated and talented young man, but because he's 6'2" and black, some people, when some people look at him, especially the police, they will see him as a threat," said Norris, who lives in Vienna. "He's doing everything right. He graduated from high school, made good grades, is still making good grades and wants to go medical school when he graduates. But the cards are still stacked against him."

When Marvin is driving, Norris has warned him to wear a shirt or sweatshirt with his college logo and place his school books on both the front and back seat of his car. His driver's license, car registration and insurance card are kept on the sun visor.

"I want him to be able to get those documents with his hands visible at all times," said Norris. "If he's stopped by the police, I pray that doing those things will keep him from becoming another victim of police brutality or arrested for something that he didn't do. Whether folks will admit it or not, everyone knows that Rittenhouse's verdict shows that black men are guilty until proven innocent, but white men are given the benefit of the doubt."

Always ask for a receipt and a bag when making a purchase is a lesson 92-year-old Hattie Jackson of Silver Spring tells grandchildren and great grandchildren. "I don't care about reducing waste, saving and protecting the environment. I am more concerned about saving the lives and protecting my babies, protecting from the police and judges."

"If a white man walked out of a store without a bag or receipt, a policeman would believe him when he said trying to avoid waste and save the planet," said Jackson. "But if my black grandsons walk out of the same store without a receipt to prove they paid for it, they might end up handcuffed in the back of a police car. It's not fair, but it's real. Rittenhouse is just more proof that Jim Crow is still alive and well."

Mini-Grants for Youth-Led Projects to Reduce Stigma of Mental Illness

The Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board (CSB) is once again offering mini-grants for youth-led projects to reduce stigma among their peers, with support from the Suicide Prevention Alliance of Northern Virginia which is funded by the Virginia Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Services. In addition to the goal of reducing the stigma around mental illness, the mini-grants also aim to promote help-seeking behaviors. While mental health concerns and disorders are common, frank discussions about them are not a common occurrence. Suicide is the third leading cause of death in youth ages 10-24.

These mini-grants will fund youth-planned, youth-led projects within Fairfax County, Fairfax City, and Falls Church City, to be completed by August 15, 2022. A total of $6,000 is available, for requests not to exceed $1,000 each.

Proposals are due Monday, Nov. 29, 2021 and awards will be announced Friday, Dec. 3, 2021. For more information on the program, some ideas from previous awardees, and how to apply visit the Fairfax-Falls Church Community Services Board (CSB) website <https://www.fairfaxcounty.gov/community-services-board/sites/community-services-board/files/assets/documents/2021-2022%20youth-led-mini-grant-rfp.pdf>

WHERE TO GIVE LOCALLY

Where To Give Locally in Alexandria and Mount Vernon

Many nonprofits in the city and nearby need your help to continue to rise to the need during the dual health and economic crisis of the pandemic, plus helping families for the holidays.

There are literally hundreds, probably thousands, of ways to give locally, financially, food and other goods, volunteer time. Here are a few ideas. Please let us know what we have missed.

Where to Give Locally

❖ ALIVE! Alexandria; 2723 King St, Alexandria, VA 22302; 703-837-9300; ALIVE! serves thousands Alexandrians annually with shelter; low-cost early childhood education and childcare; financial help for rent, utilities, medical care and other critical needs; emergency food; and deliveries of donated furniture and houseware. www.alive-inc.org

❖ Alice's Kids (@alicewillhelp) aliceskids.org P.O. Box 60, Mount Vernon, VA 22121 When a child is raised in poverty they suffer both publicly and privately. When there is no food in the refrigerator, no electricity or heat, these are hardships that they can keep hidden from their peers. But, when that same child can't afford to pay for the band field trip, a pair of glasses, a chorus outfit or a new pair of shoes, these are indignities that are evident to their classmates. Alice's Kids pays for these relatively inexpensive items in the hopes of preserving the dignity of the child. It helps children from all over the Mount Vernon area and beyond through small acts of kindness. Alice's Kids aliceskids.org 703.746.8108 contact@aliceskids.org

❖ At Home in Alexandria (AHA) is a nonprofit village that builds and sustains a 55+ community to successfully navigate aging. Together, we share activities, programs and services, including access to needed assistance. Our vision is for AHA to be an advocate for older Alexandrians to live safe, active and connected lives. AHA is a membership organization, which means you pay an annual membership fee that, in turn, entitles you to request services from AHA for an entire year. NOTICE OF WATER RATE AND BUDGET PUBLIC HEARING

December 16, 2021 at 6:30 p.m.

At 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, December 16, 2021, Fairfax Water will conduct a public hearing on its Proposed Schedule of Rates, Fees, and Charges. The hearing will be held in Fairfax Water's offices at 8570 Executive Park Avenue, Fairfax, VA.

The proposed changes, to be effective April 1, 2022, include the following:

- An increase in the Availability Charge from $4,400 to $4,510[†].
- A decrease in the Local Facilities Charge from $19,610 to $19,400.
- An increase in the Service Connection Charge from $1,430 to $1,480[†].
- An increase in the Account Charge from $40 to $41.
- An increase in the Quarterly Billing Service Charge from $14.85 to $14.95[†].
- An increase in the base Commodity Charge from $3.33 to $3.46 per 1,000 gallons of water.
- A decrease in the Peak Use Charge from $3.90 to $3.85.
- An increase in the Fees for Use of Fairfax Water Fire Hydrants to include the changes in the Commodity Charge and Peak Use Charge.
- An increase in the Overhead Charges for (Labor) from 102% to 103% and a decrease for (Materials) from 13% to 12%.

[†]Charges reflect fees associated with a standard 5/8" residential meter. Changes in charges for larger residential and commercial meters are reflected in the Proposed Schedule of Rates, Fees, and Charges.

Fairfax Water is also proposing a $208 million budget for calendar year 2022*. Water sales are expected to provide $180.1 million and the remaining $27.9 million is expected from connection charges, investment income and other sources.

The major areas of operation and maintenance expense are:

Help Save Trees

Many Northern Virginia trees, including many along George Washington Memorial Parkway, are threatened by English ivy that climbs up the trees. This invasive vine siphons water and nutrients from the surrounding soil, encourages rot and disease and blocks sunlight. Northern Virginians Aid Afghan Evacuee Family

Kuwait, several groups connected to help each other in their mission, including some still on active duty in Afghanistan.

Communications in Afghanistan required encryption to avoid leading the Taliban to the hidden families.

Over several harrowing days and nights, the family, six girls under the age of ten, six women, and six men, reached the airport and were safely airlifted to Germany. Their escape included narrowly missing the suicide bombing at Kabul International Airport.

Javid's was not the only family aided by the group.

"Our efforts to date have successfully rescued 12 translators and their families. This is great news, but the work continues," according to the group's Go Fund Me. "There are many others our group is working on getting out of Afghanistan including interpreters who directly supported Special Operations, Medical Professionals, and workers who supported an Afghan Orphanage all of whom are in fear for their lives for working with US Forces. Many more still in harm's way, trying to get out of Afghanistan."

MEANWHILE IN GERMANY, at U.S. Air Force, Ramstein Air Base, another northern Virginia couple, Colby and Linsey Wise were also heeding the call to help. The Wise family, formerly of Falls Church, had been in Germany for four years with Colby's company, providing Defense Department support. Ramstein Air Base was designated to receive evacuees airlifted from Kabul as a point of departure to the U.S. and other countries.

The Ramstein Air Base newsletter told of a growing effort, "What started as a clothing and shoe drive turned into a large donation process to sustain the evacuee population from Afghanistan temporarily housed on Ramstein Air Base, Germany, during Operation Allies Welcome. ... The team received donations valued at $1.3 million from local and international communities during the evacuation operations. The donation process began on the evening of Aug. 19, 2021, shortly after [the first] evacuees arrived at Ramstein. It dawned on us really quickly that we needed more space. Many of the donated items were not only from the Kaiserslautern Military Community, but they were from the United States, Belgium, France and other countries around the world. Volunteers collected more than 110 tons of donations."

Linsey Wise described the donation center effort. "The first sort was general sorting (e.g., men's clothes, kids shoes, baby food), the second sort was more specific (e.g., boys clothes size 2T, baby formula, women's small pants). Once sorted, the donations went to a hardened shelter area on Ramstein AB where other volunteers pulled together clothing kits. These kits contained underwear, socks, pants, shirts, scarves, hats, coats, etc. and were handed out to evacuees once they got some essentials from the Red Cross. We tried to ensure that folks had a clean set of warm clothes right away since many people came with only the clothes on their backs."

Linsey added, "Never have I felt the need to give back more than during 'Operation Allies Welcome.' Colby and I literally put our lives on pause [and hired babysitters] so we could volunteer, purchase essential items, and make purchases on behalf of friends, family, and coworkers back stateside. It was a very humbling and emotional experience, and I feel so lucky to have been a part of this effort and meet some amazing people along the way."

Leaving Ramstein Air Base, Javid and his family were flown to Dulles International Airport, then transported to temporary housing at Quantico Marine Base. After many weeks, they are still at Quantico as they await completion of final processing for the assistance of the International Organization for Migration (IOM), part of the United Nations System, the leading inter-governmental organization providing support for immigrants across the globe. IOM will assist the family in getting to Seattle, where they plan to settle near family members who have been in the U.S. for some time.

Meanwhile In Virginia, the Fox-Green group has continued to organize donations. Multiple visits to the evacuee family at Quantico included delivery of four truckloads of essentials from donors across Northern Virginia. Fox said that beyond clothing and shoes, they brought books to help entertain the girls and assist them in learning English.

She commented that the family will once again be able to take only a limited amount of belongings with them on the final part of their journey as they fly to Seattle. Fox was complimentary of the work that charities such as Lutheran Social Services are doing to support refugees with transportation, housing, job assistance, mentoring, and other essential needs beyond what the small local group can manage. The Lutheran's national capital group, with the help of 5,300 volunteers, has assisted 926 Afghan allies to date.

THE SCOTTISH CHRISTMAS WALK PARADE ROUTE

Since 1945, Campagna Center has served the residents of Alexandria by delivering exceptional educational and social development programs from cradle to career. Together we have been honored to support children and families and continue to deliver meaningful educational services so that everyone in the Alexandria community can thrive, even in the most challenging of circumstances.

Early Childhood

- In 2020, a total of 494 infants, toddlers, and preschoolers participated in our Early Childhood programs.
- On average, 77% of children served met or exceeded expectations across language, literacy, math, physical development, and social and emotional growth.
- 324 families served in Head Start funded programs received a range of social services including emergency food, clothing, shelter, mental health, and other health related services.

School-Aged Children

- In 2020, over 250 elementary, middle and high school students were served across our Campagna Kids, Building Better Futures, and Wright to Read programs.
- In Wright to Read, 26 students in the early literacy program received an average of 52 lessons this year, for a total of over 670 hours of one-on-one instruction and support provided outside the classroom.
- Despite the challenges of the pandemic, 7 high school students in the Building Better Futures program completed career exploration placements (extern-ships) that provided real-world job training and the opportunity to explore career interests.

Adults

- In 2020, our 16 volunteer language instructors spent 2,123 hours working with New Neighbors students on their English-language learning.
- New Neighbors families teamed up with the Wright to Read program for family literacy programs, including monthly Zoom sessions for story time, vocabulary building, and socializing with other Campagna Center families.

Campagna Center was able to go above and beyond the call of our mission during the COVID-19 pandemic. Some of the extra supports we were able to provide the community in 2020 included:

Delivering over 600 books into the hands of children during the pandemic so they could continue their love of reading as libraries were unable to serve families in person.

Partnering with ACT for Alexandria to distribute $20,000 in grocery store gift cards to families facing food instability so they would not miss a meal.

Providing more than 40,000 diapers per month through a critical partnership with the DC Diaper Bank—for a total of more than 360,000 diapers.

GIVE THE GIFT OF EDUCATION

Funds raised during the Scottish Walk Weekend support the educational programs of Campagna Center, Alexandria's oldest nonprofit.

With your gift, you can ensure that everyone in our community has the tools they need to thrive. To make a tax-deductible donation to Campagna Center, visit campagnacenter.org/donate.

Next Steps for Confederate Names Task Force

Residents react to proposal to change names of Lee and Lee-Jackson Memorial highways.

BY MERCIA HOBSON
THE CONNECTION

The public comment period on whether one or both of Fairfax County's highways, Lee, Route 29 and Lee-Jackson Memorial, Route 50, should be renamed ended on Nov. 12. The next step for the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors' Confederate Names Task Force (CNTF), composed of 28 members and chaired by member Evelyn Spain at their meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 30, is to review the public feedback received and reach their final recommendation.

Recapping the actions since July 2021, the Board charged the Task Force with studying the highway names and recommending to them whether or not to change the names of one or both roadways and provide recommendations on suggested alternative names if such a decision is made. It is noteworthy that if the Board wished to rename one or both roads, they would submit a formal request to the Commonwealth Transportation Board and agree to cover the expense of changing the street signs.

According to Tom Biesiadny, director of the Fairfax County Transportation Department, the cost to manufacture and change the signs alone, 171 signs on 14.1 miles of Lee Highway and 55 signs along 8.43 miles of Lee-Jackson Memorial Highway, would cost between $1 million and $4.2 million.

The Board asked staff to explain the existing County process for changing the name of a secondary road in a neighborhood; provide information about changing the names of subdivisions for the benefit of citizens interested in making those changes; coordinate with neighboring jurisdictions that are undertaking name change processes and return to the Board with information about those processes; and provide a report about the history of the naming and renaming of the Magisterial Districts. The Task Force solicited feedback through various methods, including an online survey, email, phone calls, in-person and virtual community listening sessions, and paper surveys at Fairfax County Libraries.

At the Confederate Names Task Force community input meeting held virtually on Nov. 1, caller Colin Smith said that during the last 18 months, he'd seen dozens of small businesses close, more than he'd ever seen in the three decades that he lived in the County. "I believe whatever money is being discussed, potentially earmarked for changing street names through signs, should be spent in more appropriate arenas," he said. He named low-interest loans for small businesses, school renovations, and public parks.

David Collier said that he understood there was a cost associated with it, but he considered the names a wrong that has been in place for a long time, and it was worthy of the investment. As for the historical perspective argument and that people want to cement history, he said, "I think ... sometimes you need to turn the page and move on. It is clear it is offensive to many."

Jeffrey Herron said that he echoed the sentiment that we don't need to spend "our hard-earned tax money to change street names."

Luella Benedetto said that in her estimation, the County should not be naming things after wars and their participants, generals, and so forth at all, on any side.

Pending the Task Force's recommendation at their Nov. 30 meeting, the next steps could be to begin drafting the report and developing a timeline, leading to a meeting in January 2022 with the Board.

As for what other jurisdictions are doing, on July 17, 2021, the Arlington County Board voted to officially rename US Route 29 Lee Highway to Langston Boulevard within the boundaries of Arlington County between North Lynn Street and the City of Falls Church.

Route 309/"Lee Highway"/"Old Lee Highway" should be renamed Cherry Hill Road, according to a resolution approved by the Arlington County Board on Oct. 19, 2021. The Resolution recommends ultimate approval by the Commonwealth Transportation Board (CTB).

The Arlington County website states that the name change will not affect USPS mail services. Arlington County will notify USPS directly, and their Address Management System will be updated. Following USPS updates, the name change will be reflected in the address management systems for major delivery services such as FedEx and UPS.

Under state law, the locality bears all costs associated with producing, placing, and maintaining new street signage. Arlington estimated the cost of the renaming to be up to $300,000.

Alexandria Woman Dies in Head-on Crash

A 61-year-old woman died Monday morning, Nov. 22, following a crash that occurred at 5:56 a.m. on the Fairfax County Parkway at Ox Road. Elizabeth Wallgren of Alexandria was the driver and lone occupant of a 2013 Honda Civic traveling northbound on the Fairfax County Parkway. Preliminarily, detectives determined Wallgren lost control of the vehicle, crossed over the grass median and struck a 2014 Subaru Crosstrek driving in the southbound lanes, resulting in a head-on collision. Subsequently, the driver of a 2013 Chevrolet Van, also driving southbound, crashed into the Subaru. Wallgren was pronounced deceased at the scene of the crash. The driver of the Subaru was taken to the hospital with injuries not considered life-threatening and the other driver remained on scene.

Preliminarily, detectives from our Crash Reconstruction Unit do not believe that speed and alcohol are factors in the crash, which remains under investigation.

Anyone with information about this crash is asked to contact our Crash Reconstruction Unit at 703-280-0543. Tips can also be submitted anonymously through Crime Solvers by phone – 1-866-411-TIPS (866-411-8477)

Police Reports from Mount Vernon District Station

STABBING: 8400 block of Richmond Highway, 11/15/21, 7:16 p.m. After a verbal altercation, a 55-year-old man from Alexandria, produced a knife and cut the victim. The victim was transported to the hospital with injuries that were deemed non-life threatening. Warrants for malicious wounding were obtained for the Alexandria man. This was not a random act, and the offender was known to the victim.

ROBBERY: 7400 block of Richmond Highway, 11/16/21, 1:30 p.m. While investigating an assault, a 31-year-old man from D.C. ran from the scene and ran to a nearby car dealership. At the dealership, he forcefully removed keys from the victim and stole a 2007 Dodge Caliber. No injuries were reported. Warrants for robbery have been obtained against the 31-year-old man.

ATTEMPTED COMMERCIAL ROBBERY: 2253 Huntington Avenue (Checks Cashed), 11/17/21, 6:43 p.m. A man entered the business, implied he had a weapon, and attempted to take merchandise. No injuries were reported.

LARCENY/ BRANDISHING WEAPON (KNIFE)/ ASSAULT ON LAW ENFORCEMENT: 6303 Richmond Highway (Walmart), 11/17/21, 7:07 p.m. Officers responded to the location for a man who took merchandise and was threatening people with a large knife. When the first officer arrived, the 35-year-old man of Alexandria, was outside the business with the knife. Initially, the man refused to obey the commands and approached the officer aggressively with the knife. A CEW was deployed to safely take the man into custody. No injuries were reported, and the man was charged with larceny, brandishing a weapon, and assault on a law enforcement officer.

ATTEMPTED CARJACKING: Pole Road and Sacramento Drive, 11/19/21, 12:02 a.m. The victim, a for-hire driver, dropped off his passenger at his requested destination. The passenger, a 26-year-old man from Alexandria, requested the victim to remain at that location so he could have an additional ride. When the man returned, he displayed a handgun and demanded the victim's vehicle. The victim was able to drive away and was not injured. The man was located near the scene and arrested for robbery.

GAZETTE PACKET

This Holiday Season is the perfect opportunity to re-engage with our community and support the small businesses that make Alexandria a vibrant place to call home. Forget the hassles of shipping delays, lost packages, and supply-chain shortages. The act of gift-giving should be a thoughtful experience that enjoyably engages the senses. So why not break the habit of clicking and spending online? The local stores in our community are well-stocked with beautifully curated collections of gifts to delight everyone on your list.

Shopping small allows us to personally connect with neighborhood business owners who are passionate about their offerings and full of suggestions about how best to make holiday wishes come true. So, get out of the house and come discover the treasure shops that line the streets where we live.

Gifts for Four-Legged Friends

The Olde Towne School for Dogs is located in the heart of Alexandria's historic district (529 Oronoco St) and is recognized as a landmark facility for educating dogs and their owners. But did you know they also have a retail space filled with unusual and fun holiday gifts for furry family members? This local business is staffed with helpful employees who have lots of great suggestions for your holiday shopping. The Honey I'm Home Countdown to Christmas Calendar is a delicious way for your pet to celebrate Christmas everyday with nutritional honey coated buffalo treats. And since there is no sweeter time than the holidays to treat someone, consider GIVEPET's holiday snacks that let you treat your pet (and a dog in the shelter) with every package purchased. It is hard to resist the cheerful sound of jingling bells, and with the Huxley & Kent's jingle collars you'll be spreading jingling joy on your winter walks. You'll also find Hanukkah options for furry friends. FabDog's Menorah Moose will brighten your dog's Hanukkah and the Cherish Treats from Copa Judaica will keep them entertained for more than 8 days.

Gifts for the Earth-Conscious

Mason & Greens is more than just an inviting and eclectic shopping experience at 913 King Street - it is also a lifestyle that embraces sustainability. Every shopping trip to Old Town should include a visit to this wonderful retail space because it is brimming with items that inspire shoppers to be more mindful of our impact on our world. For the eco-friendly on your holiday list, you will find all things zero-waste and plastic-free at Mason & Greens. Shop compostable wrapping paper, plantable seed cards, vegan advent calendars, plastic-free ornaments and more. With a five cent bag tax taking effect in the City, plus Arlington and Fairfax County beginning Jan. 1, you might be especially interested in a Mason & Greens tote so you can stylishly avoid those bag fees and do better for the planet.

Giving Thanks

Residents share their reasons to be grateful.

Henry Dorton, Commander, American Legion Post 24 – “With so much divisiveness in the world today, the one thing we can all agree on is to be thankful for those troops who are protecting and serving this country and for those who have served in the past.”

As Thanksgiving approaches, feelings of gratitude abound. Following a greatly scaled back and in many cases virtual celebration last year, family and friends cautiously embrace the return of in-person gatherings and the traditional Thanksgiving Day Turkey Trot.

“I am 90 years old and thank the Lord every day just for being here,” said retiree Charles Nelson.

Added resident Jacqueline Kennedy, “It’s been a very tough time for the last year or so but I believe [our nation] is healing and I am grateful to see that come into existence in 2022.”

While the COVID-19 pandemic is still a concern, the availability of a vaccine for most children and adults has helped reverse the isolation and loneliness that prevailed over last year’s Thanksgiving Day holiday.

“I am grateful for my family and my friends,” said Marybeth Norris. “I know it’s what everybody says but it’s so true.”

— JEANNE THEISMANN

Charles Nelson – “I am thankful for everything. I am on this side of the dirt while so many of my friends are gone. We buried my niece last week and she was only 56 years old. But I’m an old man – I’m 90 years old and I thank the Lord every day just for being here. Thank you, Jesus.”

Wilder Estrada, hair salon owner – “I am thankful for the help I have had and that my friends and family did not get COVID. Everybody made it through 2020 healthy and happy and hopefully we finish this year the same way.”

Jacqueline Kennedy – “I’m thankful for getting a position at the National Gallery of Art and for family and precious friends. I also know that our nation is healing. It’s been a very tough time for the last year or so but I believe it’s healing and I am grateful to see that come into existence in 2022.”

"Cancerependity"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

It seems clear that being re-diagnosed with thyroid cancer after initially being diagnosed with non-small lung cancer, stage IV is a good thing. As to whether it's a beneficial thing, 10+ years past my original lung cancer diagnosis remains to be seen. Some damage may have been done and the presumptive friendliness of thyroid cancer (often referred to as "the friendly cancer" because of its cure rate) no longer applies to me, given the miscellaneous damage I've referred to in previous columns: kidney damage being the most significant. Still, according to my oncologist, thyroid cancer is better to have than lung cancer.

'Better' might mean less traumatic (physically, emotionally, psychologically), and let's be brutally simple: less "terminal" as well - by a long shot. So when my newly referred doctor, an endocrinologist (specialty is thyroid, among others) confirmed that my existing diagnosis had changed to papillary thyroid cancer, and suggested that I might never have had lung cancer, a wave of relief swept over me. However, I subsequently learned, as I have shared previously with you regular readers, that I'm still in serious trouble and that my life expectancy is not at all what I hoped. Though the change in diagnosis certainly looks great on paper and the treatment is very manageable, the previous 10 years of mostly infused, toxic chemotherapy has left its mark. Among a number of other life-changing effects, because of the kidney damage, there's only certain medications and dosages I can take.

Rewind to the first attempt to eradicate my thyroid cancer, surgery. I had a thyroidectomy: usually an out-patient operation with the patient back home that same day. The surgery was to remove my thyroid glands and parathyroid glands - and presumably kill any remaining cancer. This surgical operation occurs after the patient goes on a strict no iodine diet for 30 dirty days prior to the procedure. This is because thyroid cancer cells contain iodine and the medicine injected at the hospital contains radioisotopes specifically engineered to kill anything with iodine in it. The less extraneous iodine, the more the iodine attaches to its intended target: the thyroid cancer cells. My operation was scheduled to last two hours. It lasted seven-plus hours. Why? Because the cancer had been allowed to grow untreated for so long (due to the evolving diagnosis), it embedded itself under my collarbone and despite the doctor's best efforts to remove all the cells (he said this was the longest thyroidectomy he had ever performed), he couldn't. That was the purpose of the radioisotopes: to kill any remaining cancer. However, because the radioisotope dose I received was one-third that normally prescribed dosage - due to kidney considerations, the one-third dosage was insufficient to kill the remaining thyroid cancer cells. Thus, I am now left with papillary thyroid cancer that is in effect, incurable. At this juncture, after the surgery and radioisotope injection, there of course is medication to take: Lenvimo. It's a daily pill with side effects, of course, but nothing compared to the side effects from the heavy-duty chemotherapy I had been on for years (every three weeks at the Infusion Center). Unfortunately, and this is where we get to the nub of the issue, the medicine has a two to three year window. As of now, I'm about 15 months into my window. And as you might imagine, this scenario is hardly common in the cancer trial world. To quote my friend Winslow: I'm bereft." Or to use my own expression: "I'm s.o.l."

Nevertheless, I see no advantage to marking the calendar. I'm lucky to be alive. If I had been asked at any time during my lung cancer daze if I would trade lung cancer for thyroid cancer, knowing what I've learned, absolutely, I would have made the trade. Though the trade was never proffered - or possible, obviously, I still have been impacted by the future considerations.

Gifts for the Gardener

The one thing that every gardener loves is inspiration for how to make their garden better. Green Spring Gardens, at 4603 Green Spring Road, and the Friends of Green Spring (FROGS), do just that. This public park provides year-round motivation with a wooded stream valley and ponds, a native plant garden, more than 20 thematic demonstration gardens, a greenhouse, a plant and gift shop, a historic house, and a horticultural reference library.

And the Friends of Green Spring is dedicated solely to the support of this special place. A gift membership to FROGS is the gift that keeps giving, because it includes special admission privileges and discounts at 345+ gardens throughout North America, including free admission to Hillwood in DC, and Lewis-Ginter Botanical Garden in Richmond.

There is no better gift for a gardener than to treat them to all the benefits of a FROGS membership, all while supporting Green Spring Gardens. While you are at Green Spring Gardens, be sure to check out the gift shop in the horticultural center where you can find garden gift ideas, including gardening caps, pruners, naturalist puzzles, gardening journals, nature-themed socks, house plants, and more. Memberships can be purchased in person, by calling 703-642-5173, or on-line at FriendsOfGreenSpring.org.

Gifts for the Nature Lover

It's hard to wrap up a big blue sky, trees or sunshine, but the Wild Bird Center (3216 Duke St) succeeds in bringing joy to the nature lover in all of us with wonderful gift ideas that can fit in a bag.

Their Clear View Window Feeders are great for introducing children to birding by making it close and personal. Easy-to-fill open trays come in different sizes to fit your needs and the covered roof provides all-weather feeding. A good read for birders and non-birders alike is David Allen Sibley's What It's Like to be a Bird. In this book, you will find answers to the most frequently asked questions about the birds we see most often. Sibley's wonderful large full-color illustrations and expertise are a feast for the eyes as well as the mind. And when the cold weather forces us inside, peanut wreaths add festive charm that is appreciated by birds and squirrels who provide entertainment with their silly antics while retrieving their treats.

Gifts for the History Buff

It is hard to beat George Washington's Mount Vernon as a destination for history lovers, and we are so fortunate to have this historic gem in our community. When looking for gifts for the history buff, look no further than the gift shops at Mount Vernon. Consider a signed first edition of "Travels with George: In Search of Washington and his Legacy," by Nathaniel Philbrick, where the author argues for Washington's contribution to the forging of America by retracing his journey as a new president through all thirteen former colonies. Or pick up a copy of George Washington's "Rules of Civility & Decent Behaviour in Company and Conversation," a guide for social behavior and good manners that is as relevant today as it was in George Washington's time. An exciting new product is Virginia Porter, Mount Vernon's rye cask-aged porter that bears a beautiful label with George's image. Combined with a can of Mount Vernon salted peanuts, and you can probably make anyone happy, whether they are a history-buff or not. As the best possible gift for the history enthusiast on your list, consider a membership to Mount Vernon, which comes with many benefits and helps to support the Mount Vernon's Ladies Association in their important mission to preserve George Washington's legacy.

AM-Mount Vernon porter.jpg
Mount Vernon's rye cask aged porter.

Gifts for the Sensory-Connoisseur

For everyone on your list who is exhausted from the pandemic, there is no better time to focus on self-care and Nicole Scott-Howe's charming boutique, Re-Design in a Day, offers locally made products to pamper the senses.

Her inviting neighborhood store offers fragrant soaps, soothing lotions, honey salve, bath teas, rose petal facials, and aromatherapy soy candles, as well as vintage finds and home decor. In supporting this local business, you support the local businesses that Nicole showcases in her store. The Re-Design in a Day store is located in the Hollin Hall Shopping Center, open Wednesday-Sunday.

Be sure to embrace all the wonderful retail opportunities that bring life to our community and support local businesses. Be well, stay safe, and Happy Thanksgiving.
